Lisa Damour to Keynote Global Forum

The virtual kick-off to the Global Forum on Girls’ Education® III will be highlighted by a keynote presentation from Lisa Damour, a New York Times bestselling author, CBS News contributor, clinical psychologist, podcaster, and Director of Laurel School’s Center for Research on Girls.

The virtual component of the Global Forum III will take place June 21-22. This dynamic slate of programming will be available via a robust virtual platform that may be accessed by all conference registrants—virtual and in-person. In addition to participating in keynote and breakout sessions unique to the virtual program, educators will also have asynchronous access to recordings for three months following the event.

We hope to see you in Boston June 27-29 or during our virtual program June 21-22. View the comprehensive virtual and in-person schedules here and register today!

Now Streaming: Girls as Global Citizens

Educators often talk about instilling global competencies and teaching students to become global citizens, but what does that really mean?

In the newest episode of the Coalition’s On Educating Girls podcast, Clare Sisisky, Executive Director of the Global Education Benchmark Group, shares her experience, wisdom, insights, and actionable recommendations for educators and parents. Tune in and share the podcast with anyone in your life who is educating or raising girls.

Member schools are invited to embed the On Educating Girls podcast channel on their websites, as a resource for current and prospective families. Contact Kathleen Osborne for details.

Last Call: Coalition Publications Sale

For a limited time, we’ve discounted prices on all Coalition publications, including infographic Creating a Gender-Equal World
Member schools around the world are making plans to celebrate International Women's Day in their communities on March 8.

How will you mark the occasion and #BreaktheBias? Tell us so that we may spotlight your work in support of gender equality on our Coalition social channels.

Reasons You Should Attend the Global Forum:
By the Numbers Edition

- 8 countries are represented by presenters and attendees (Australia, Canada, Colombia, Ireland, Israel, Philippines, South Africa, UK, US)
- 2020 was the year we last convened an in-person Coalition event
- 100+ schools will be taking part in breakout and INSPIRE! sessions
- 132 pages in the 2022 Official Visitor's Guide to Boston & Cambridge describe how you can make the most of your time in the region
- >150,000 students in member girls' schools around the world need your voice at the table

Real-Time Resources
The Coalition offers member schools an array of materials that may be utilized and shared on your own websites and social channels. These include the On Educating Girls Podcast, as well as:

- Raising Girls' Voices Blog postings
- Informational Videos
- Educator Toolkits on Social Justice, Anti-Racism & Race Relations, Girls in STEM, Gender Identity in Girls' Schools, and more
- Curated collections of Books of Interest and Films of Interest
- An archive of past issues of our Coalition Connection newsletter

Engage with us and repurpose our content on Twitter, Instagram, Facebook, LinkedIn, and YouTube too.

Have an item of your own to share? Send us an email.

News to Note
Articles of interest for girls' school educators.

- Decades-long study in Bangladesh shows how access to family planning shapes lives
  Phys.org
- 2 truths and a lie about why you are butting heads with your teen
  CNN Health (with advice from Lisa Damour)
- Priorities for advancing women's equal political leadership in the coming year
  Brookings Institution
  Teen Vogue

Discover Career Opportunities at Girls' Schools